GERMANY DEPRESSED BY NEW TERMS

Nowlan Scores Police Politics

WHY THE SILENCE?

Although five former members of the police force have made charges against John E. Kennedy, member of the fire and police commission, alleging that he made slanderous remarks about them when they were on the force, and that he threatened to get their jobs, no move has been made by Mayor Welsh or other city officials to ascertain whether the charges were true or not. It appears that the mayor and other officials would like to see the matter smoothed over. At least they have not taken cognizance of the fact that charges have been hurled back and forth.

The city council last night was silent on the matter. Kennedy says that the charges made by the policemen are not true. In the meantime the taxpayers are kept in the dark. It is their privilege to get at the bottom of the affair. The mayor has the right, and it is his duty to either have the charges proved or disproved. Either the men who quit their jobs as policemen are in error or Kennedy is, and inasmuch as the public is interested in the affairs of the city, these officials should see that the truth be presented.

President Nowlan of the fire and police commission says that politics must be withdrawn from the police department if progress is to be made. Mr. Nowlan is right. The police department of Janesville has been made a political football for sometime and the public is sick and tired of the ridiculous situations which have arisen because of the desire of a few to play petty politics.

The police problem is too serious to be lightly considered. Despite the fact that Mr. Nowlan says the city is adequately policed, such a statement does not seem reasonable. Only three or four experienced men are on the force. The special men have no particular qualifications for the jobs. Strangers are coming here every day. We are in close proximity to Chicago and Milwaukee and thieves and thugs from those cities are keen to the opportunities presented for making a clean haul here most any time. They know what the situation is. The local police force has been a joke for months and crooks know it. It is no secret. The word has been passed. The Gazette cannot be accused of advertising the fact.

Are the taxpayers going to stand for the continuation of such conditions simply because one or two men want to run things in their own way? The mayor is said to have declared that he will not ask Kennedy to resign. All right, if the mayor will take steps to ascertain whether or not Kennedy is not guilty of the accusations made by the five former patrolmen and can satisfy the public that Kennedy is a desirable man for the board, no one wants Kennedy's resignation.

All the public wants is a reorganization of the police force. They want all the dirty linen washed and put out of the way and then they want police protection adequate for the city.

If it is necessary to start with what is left of the organization and clear house the taxpayers demand this should be done. But after a force is organized let those who have been in the habit of playing politics keep their hands off. Put a man in the chief's chair who knows something about police business. Allow him to organize a force that will do business. Install a signal system so that the men can work intelligently. Instead of allowing Janesville's police force to be known as a joke, send the word broadcast that bad luck is in store for the person who does not tread the straight and narrow path.

The citizens want a new deal. They believe in their city and they are not going to see its future marred by a condition such as exists today. Those who believe in a decent city will come right in the open and fight for it. Those who do not care, will remain under cover. But there are enough men in this city who are courageous enough to stand for decency to bring pressure to bear so that this unbearable situation can be forever cleared up.

FARMERS CONTINUE TO CRY FOR LABOR

Although large numbers of soldiers are daily receiving their discharges and returning home to civilian life, the shortage of farm help throughout the southern part of the state continues and there are no signs of abatement of the farmers' clamoring for labor. Work in cities apparently holds more attraction for the returned fighters than cultivating corn under a hot sun, despite good wages.

W. H. Levy, superintendent of the local branch of the federal employment service, reports an ever increasing shortage of both farm and city labor. During the past three weeks he has mailed out letters to 250 returned soldiers throughout this section advising them of the cooperation of the local office in securing positions for them. Many replies have been received and a number have been given jobs.

CHAMBER PROTESTS INCOME TAX BILL

Letters of protests against the Arnold bill which would saddle a 25 percent tax on all incomes in excess of $20,000, have been mailed by the Chamber of Commerce of Rock county's representatives in the state legislature—Assemblyman T. S. Nolan and Senator L. E. Cunningham.

The letters were prepared and drawn up by Alexander Jacobson, secretary of the commercial division of the chamber.

"We consider this bill a vicious, ruthless, stingy, grasping measure as well as another socialist nightmare to tarnish the good name of the proud state of Wisconsin," reads the letter.

Members of the chamber are asked to personally protest to Assemblyman Nolan so that he may be able to present the reaction of local people at the hearing, Thursday.

BITTER FIGHT IS ON OVER LEAGUE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Washington, June 17.—The senate fight over the league of nations entered a new phase today with the beginning of debate on the resolution of Senator Knox, republican of Pennsylvania, providing that the senate formally expressing resolutions of unwillingness to accept the league covenant as it now is, intervenes with the terms of peace.

The debate is expected to be protracted and develop some of the bitterest passages yet produced by the treaty fight. League supporters are ready to fight the resolution at every step, though they are prepared to take any necessary action to prevent the passage of the measure.

Those favoring the resolution declared that if it should command the support of more than one third of the senate the result would be to serve notice that the treaty never could be ratified in its present form. This, however, as denied by the opposition leaders.

Senator Knox was ready to open the debate and Senator McCumber, of North Dakota, another republican member of the foreign relations committee prepared to make the first speech in opposition.

PRESIDENT OF BOARD GIVES VIEWS

DECLARES DEPARTMENT
CANNOT BE IMPROVED
WITHOUT CHANGE.
ADVOCATES NEW EQUIPMENT

Sees Need For Signal System,
New Patrol and Ambulance.

"Politics must be withdrawn from the police department. If the department is to be improved," Harry O. Nowlan, president of the fire and police commission, said today. He emphatically said that it was not up to him or any other member of the board to investigate the allegations made by the five police officers. He said that it was a matter for Mayor Welsh and the council to take up.

Mr. Nowlan in discussing the police situation in this city said that several things were necessary to bring about an efficient police organization. He stated that it was he and not Mr. Kennedy who had caused the dismissal of three police officers. "They all committed serious offenses against the rules of the commission and after several reports received by me I ordered them dismissed," Mr. Nowlan said.

Calling It Dumping Ground.
"The police department is and has been for a number of years a political dumping ground and until the department is taken out of politics no change can get good results," Mr. Nowlan said.

In discussing the changes to be made to perfect the organization, Mr. Nowlan said: "After politics are taken out of the police department it will be necessary to purchase a large amount of new equipment for the chief and his men. A call system will have to be installed by which the chief can get in touch with the men patrolling the beats. A new police patrol and ambulance will have to be purchased as the one now in operation is a disgrace to the city."

New Patrol Needed.
"An automobile for the chief must be purchased as at the present time if he receives a call he either has to walk, ask his friends to give him a ride or take the police patrol and when that steps in front of the house the people will not even answer the door."

"We also need a chief who has got the backbone to enforce discipline. He must be a fearless man and have the ability to deal with the men who are not ready and eager at all times to enforce the law."

Mr. Nowlan said that it is a known fact that the police department is in fact a dumping ground for the city's troubles and when spoken of to strangers and even to residents of Janesville that it is looked upon as a joke.

He told of the five police officers coming to his office at 1 o'clock Saturday morning and voicing their demands. He said they asked for the dismissal of Mr. Kennedy from the board, the formal appointment of William E. Cowley as chief of police, better working conditions and more money or shorter working hours. Referring to the last demand Mr. Nowlan said it was up to the head of the department to decide on the new hours for the men working under him.

Up to Mayor.
"I and the other members of the commission were powerless to do anything to help the men who have been put in this position," Mr. Nowlan said. "It was a matter for the mayor and the city council and when no action was taken by 3 o'clock the men turned in their stars."

Mr. Nowlan stated emphatically that Janesville was not sufficiently policed at the present time and he said that contrary to reports to the contrary he had been asked to act in an emergency were not required to take the physical examination.

Regarding the new chief, Mr. Nowlan said that he did not know what was going to be done. He said it was impossible to appoint Timothy Mulcahy of Chicago as he was a non-resident and he could not stay definitely before long or not. "I may call a special meeting of the commission in a few days," said he.

Mayor T. E. Welsh previously said that he had nothing to do regarding the demands made by the officers.

Police Sergeant Asks To be Made Private
[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS]
Springfield, Mass., June 17.—Police Sergeant Edward Carey has earned a unique distinction in petitioning to the police commissioner to be demoted to the rank of patrolman. The request has been granted by the police commissioner.

Carey was appointed sergeant several months ago as a reward for his splendid record as a patrolman. The work was not as fascinating as he had bargained for, however, as a sergeant is shifted at monthly intervals between the three watches and must often put in as many as 10 and 12 hours a day making reports.

Accordingly, he came to the conclusion that a nice day job of eight hours, with two days off a month is to be preferred to a sergeant's chevrons, a half dollar more a day and the honor of working many hours overtime.

Turkish Vizer Pleads People Not to Blame for War

The Ottoman representatives are here early in the capacity of experts, and today's meeting was to set forth the Turkish situation to the conference. The meeting was informal. It lasted an hour.

The general status of the mission was emphasized by its entering through and departing by different doors from the members of the council.

Joining Mr. Igoe in supporting the motion were Representatives Gard, democrat, Ohio, and Classon, republican, Wisconsin.

VILLA PLANS KEEP YANKS ON GUARD

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
El Paso, Tex., June 16.—San Francisco Villa and his rebel command believed to be heading toward Casas Grandes. Before he attacked Juarez, Villa announced his intention of establishing his base at Casas Grandes.

General Cabell announced that every effort had been made to get the news of the American expedition to Americans in the interior of Mexico in order that they might be on guard. He expressed the opinion that the larger towns and said he did not expect a large number of Americans to be killed if Villa starts an anti-American campaign.

Opinion on this part of the border is divided as to what Villa's attitude will be. Many Americans have expressed themselves strongly against the expedition, claiming that it is a danger zone, will go into the larger towns and said he did not expect a large number of Americans to be killed if Villa starts an anti-American campaign.

Army officers declared today the punitive expedition, following constant reports of Villa's movements, would have a wholesome effect.

Nation-Wide Search Made For Drums of Fusiliers

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS]
Boston, June 17.—A nation-wide search has been instituted for the drums of the North British Fusiliers, a tradition has it that 140 years ago the drums were captured by the United States forces when the British under General Burgoyne, surrendered at Saratoga.

Adjutant-General Jesse F. Stevens, of Massachusetts, has received a communication from Adjutant-General J. C. Ashburn at Washington asking that the famous drums are in any Massachusetts museum. A similar communication has been sent out to other States. The Royal Scots Fusiliers' association, of England, asked the War Department at Washington to find the drums, if possible. In concluding his letter, Adjutant-General Ashburn said that "if the Royal Scots Fusiliers could be told by me that there is no trace of their old drums in this country, it would effectually kill the tradition that these drums are still in existence in this country."

It was said at the White House today that the president expected to spend three weeks on his speaking tour, explaining the peace treaty and the League of Nations covenant. The itinerary has not been announced, but he expects to visit the principal cities over the country.

The president has made known his desire that his audiences during his tour be composed largely of opponents of the League of Nations plan rather than its supporters. He also informed White House officials that he might discuss the league covenant in public addresses during his visit to Belgium next week.

He is expected to arrive in Washington tomorrow the president should arrive in Washington about July 3. He will present the revised draft of the peace treaty and the League of Nations covenant in a joint session of the senate and house.

HEADS OF GOVERNMENT IN OLD CASTLE QUIET BUT DESPONDENT.

ALLEGED CRUELTY DEEPLY RESENTED
Detailed Reply of Allies to Counter Proposals Is Handed Over.

Weimar, June 17.—The new alliance of the heads of government here last night and the first apparent effect upon the German leaders was that of depression.

A report published rapidly through the old castle where the government heads are residing temporarily that the signing of the peace terms by Germany was highly improbable.

No one would talk for publication but every official and every member of the foreign office available expressed the deepest pessimism as regards the alleged cruelty of the terms. The Germans were especially embittered over a report that a French mob had stoned the helpless German delegates at Versailles.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Paris, Monday, June 16.—The detailed reply of the allies to the conference to the counter proposals of the Germans, which was handed to the German delegation at Versailles today, takes up in its order each of the leading points of contention of the provisions of the original peace treaty.

Among the modifications to the treaty which are accepted by the conference are: frontiers to be determined by the League of Nations; no reparations for war damage; a guarantee to Germany that she will receive fair treatment in securing mineral products from that region; modifications in the clauses relating to finance, economic and monetary phases of the treaty; permission for Germany to retain 200,000 men in its army temporarily and a promise to furnish Germany within a month with a full bill of the payments to be tried or responsibility for the great conflict and violations of the laws of war.

Reparations Detailed.
The reply says that the Germans made no definite offer as to reparations, but "gave only vague expressions of willingness to do something." The sum of 100,000,000,000 marks which was the figure for the many counter proposals, is said to give the impression of an extensive offer, which upon examination it proves not to be.

Interest was paid and until 1928 there would be no substantial payment, after which there could be a series of undefined installments running over nearly half a century.

The resumption of German industry is of interest to the allies as well as to Germany, the reply declares that commercial facilities will not be made available to Germany until the reparations are paid in full.

It is stipulated that reparations must be made prior to the settlement of all other German claims. The commission may approve. Payment for food may also be a first charge, and gold may be exported on approval.

Germany must pay the expense of military occupation as an essential guarantee of peace, and war material surrendered after the armistice cannot be credited against reparations. Liberated territories will bear their portion of the pre-war debt, but will not assume any part of the war debt itself.

After the events of the war, it is said, Germany will have the right to demand that Germany be no longer intimately involved in their financial or economic life, or in that of Germany's former allies, or Russia.

The great part of Germany's foreign securities must be liquidated, the protection of German holders will no longer justify German participation in international organizations.

Germany also has her credits in Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey. Transitional Regime Needed.

In the discussion of the economic clauses, the reply states that the principles embodied in the covenant of the League of Nations as to the equality of rights in respect to the economic life of nations are to be brought into effect when the world returns to normal, but in the meantime a transitional regime is essential to save certain vital states from a position of economic inferiority because of the damage done to their territories during the war. Reciprocity is impossible at present and a general and indiscriminate re-application of multilateral and bilateral treaties cannot be accepted.

News Notes from Movieland

Gloria Swanson, already rated as one of the best actresses in the films is proof of the fact that the screen offers opportunities to the "extra." A year ago Miss Swanson forsook slapstick comedy and became an extra in a Cecil B. De Mille production. Even in the small part she had in one of his spectacular sets, she showed latent ability, and Mrs. De Mille resolved to watch her.

Today as a result of her work in "Don't Change Your Husband," where she appeared as the leading woman, she is established as a success. In her second Aftersight picture, "For Better or Worse," she did especially good work and now comes the news that she will play the leading feminine role in the forthcoming De Mille production which will be a screen version of Sir James M. Barrie's satirical play, "The Admirable Crichton," which, however, will probably not be released under that title.

Thomas Meighan will play the lead opposite Miss Swanson in the production and it is rumored that Bebe Daniels will also be in the cast.

TOYS TO MAKE COMEDIES
Eddie Foy and his family of seven, who recently appeared in an original vaudeville comedy, will go to Denver for the summer to begin making a series of two-reel comedy pictures to be known as "Foy Fun Films." George McManus, the cartoonist, has created a special cartoon character for Mr. Foy to be used in these pictures. Foy has signed a contract with the National Film corporation of Englewood for these pictures, and the comedian will be directed by Albert W. Hale, who is manager of productions in the National company.

Well-known comedians of comedy stories will supply Mr. Foy and his seven gifted children with plots for pictures. Property and scenery for the productions is now being constructed, and upon the arrival of the Foy family the screen work will begin immediately.

TWO STARS HAVE BIRTHDAYS
Douglass Fairbanks is 36 years old, and he declared a holiday on the fatal date and the whole studio helped him celebrate, even his young son. He had come out west to see his daddy. Several barrels of powder and a case of blank cartridges were used in the various wild west dances. The famous cow-puncher, gave Doug a real Wyoming "hoss," and others in the company presented the celebrated star with useful presents.

Dustin Farnum celebrated his birthday anniversary recently also. He received from Brother William Farnum a big box containing all kinds and designs of fishing tackle, hooks, flies, rods and reels. The equipment comprising this gift is for Dustin Farnum's new sea-going yacht. The Dingy, which has been refitted, lengthened and furnished in contemplation of a Pacific coastal cruise in the interim between making pictures.

CHINA HAS M. P. CO.
And now comes China's first motion picture company. Word reached here last week that a big studio is being erected in Canton, to be called the China Motion Picture company. China, it is said, has suddenly gone film mad and is demanding more productions.

THE WISHING PLANE

It was raining when Jack and Jane and their new friend Jeanne came out of the house. So Captain Brave decided to stay over another day. Jane will never forget the good time she had playing house with Jeanne.

For although Jeanne's own toys were gone, she had found dishes and things, and the soldiers had all made a little pet of her and had given her toys they made.

Jack had a good time, too, for of course Captain Brave spent his time with the soldiers and Jack went along with him.

The more Booh thought about having a strap and collar attached to him all the time, the more angry he became. If ever you have seen a little dog mad enough to bite nails, you will understand why Booh started to bite his strap, and he kept on biting until he chewed it through. There was just a short end of it hanging to his collar. Being free to run as he pleased again, Booh forgot his bringing up and decided to run away. A bunch of course he considered it just a sight-seeing trip.

So he started down the street. Like most anybody with a guilty conscience he didn't hold his head very high until he was out of sight of the house. Then a thousand and one things that would interest a little puppy tumbled on from corner to corner. He trotted through the dust and made friends with all the French dogs he met. In fact he was having a great romp with one of them when a terrible accident happened.

Booh dashed around a corner in the street with one of his new found friends at his heels. The street he came into was being paved as it had been torn up by great shells during the war. If you have ever seen men paving a street you know that they make big puddles of water in it at first to settle the dirt.

That is the way this street was—one big puddle after another. When Booh came around the corner he saw the puddles too late and landed in one of them. It looked just as if some one had thrown a big piece of cotton wadding into an ink bottle, and when Booh scrambled out he was the dirtiest looking dog in the world. The only things white about him were his teeth. When he shook himself the mud flew in all directions. The cold water, though, cooled his desire to see the world alone and awoke his conscience again. He decided he had better start back. He was rather doubtful, too about the reception he would get being covered with mud that way.

So it was that just about the time Jack and Jane and the other folks were going to start out to hunt for him he trotted slowly around a building and came into sight.

If he hadn't looked so disgusted and repentant he might have been scolded. As it was everybody laughed, which really hurt Booh's feelings, and then Booh was given a thorough bath and told to sit on a chair.

Booh wouldn't have cared if Captain Brave had made him wear a collar and strap after this, but Captain Brave decided that this lesson would be enough and that Booh would stay pretty close to home without a strap, so Booh got rid of his collar.

Reading advertisements has helped to make this a united country

Jim Hawkins props his feet on the rose festooned porch railing in an Oregon suburb and reads the same motor car advertisement that Cousin Peter is studying as he rides home from work in the New York subway.

You can meet up with anybody in the United States and quickly get on a conversational footing because you both read the same advertisements.

Advertising is the daily guide to what's good to buy.

Advertisements give you the latest news from the front line of business progress.

Reading advertisements enables you to get more for your money because they tell you where, what and when to buy.

And it is a well-known fact that advertised goods are more reliable and better value than the unadvertised kinds.

In Arizona you can buy the same tooth paste and tobacco that are used by the folks in Maine.

California fruit growers advertise their oranges and lemons to the people of the East. New Hampshire factories make ice cream freezers for Texas households.

There can be no division in a country so bound together by taste, habit and custom.

"To go most by the ghost, sar," he said. "All these men had never been killed if the ghost hadn't been somewhere near. Mark me, if we find the treasure it'll be by the ghost."

"That's all very well," I laughed. "But how are we going to get the ghost to show his hand? He's got such bloodthirsty ways with him."

"They always have, sar," said Tom, no doubt with some ancestral shudder of voodoo worship in his blood. "Yes, sar, they always cry out for blood. It's all they've got to live on. They drink it like you and me drink coffee or rum. It's terrible to hear them in the night."

"Well, Tom," I remarked, "you may be right, but of one thing I'm certain; if the ghost's going to get any one, it shan't be you."

"We've both got one good chance against them—Tom was beginning."

"Don't tell me again about that old sucking fish."

"Mind you keep it safe, for all that," said Tom gravely. "I wouldn't lose mine for a thousand pounds."

"Well, all right, but let's forget the damned old ghosts for the present."

We decided to try a plan that was really no plan at all; that is to say, to seek more or less at random, till we consumed all our stores except just enough to take us home. Meanwhile we would, each of us, every day, cut a sort of radiating swathe, working single-handed, from the cave entrance. Thus we would prospect as much of the country as possible in a sort of fan, both of us keeping our eyes open for a compass carved on a rock. In this way we might hope to cover no inconsiderable stretch of the country in the three weeks, and, moreover, the country most likely to give some results, as being that lying in a semicircle from the little harbor where the ships would have lain. It wasn't much of a plan perhaps, but it seemed the most possible among the impossibles.

Harder work than we had undertaken no men have ever set their hands to. It would have broken the back of the most able-bodied navy; and when we reached the boat at sunset we had scarce strength left to eat our supper and roll into our bunks. A machete is a heavy weapon that needs no little skill in handling with economy of force, and Tom, who had been brought up to it, was, in spite of his years, a better practitioner than I.

I have already hinted at the kind of devil's underbrush we had to cut our way through, but no words can do justice to the almost intelligent stubbornness with which those wild growths opposed us. It really seemed as though they were inspired by a diabolic will.

force pitting itself against our will, vegetable incarnation of evil strength and fury and cunning.

Day after day Tom and I returned home dead beat, with hardly a tired word to exchange with each other. We had now been at it for about a fortnight, and I loved the old chap more every day for the grit and courage with which he supported our terrible labors and kept up his spirits. Once or twice we had made fancied discoveries which we called off the other to see, and once or twice we had tried some blasting on rocks that seemed to suggest mysterious tunnelings into the earth. But it had all proved a vain thing and a weariness of the flesh. And the ghost of John P. Tobias still kept his secret.

CHAPTER VIII.

An Unfinished Game of Cards. One evening as I returned to the ship unusually worn out and disheartened I asked Tom how the stores were holding out. He answered cheerfully that they would last another week and leave us enough to get home.

"Well, shall we stick out the other week or not, Tom? I don't want to kill you, and I confess I'm nearly all in myself."

"May as well stick it out, sar, now we've gone so far. Then we'll have done all we can, and there's a certain satisfaction in doing that, sar."

So next morning we went at it again, and the next, and the next again, and then on the fourth day, when our week was drawing to its close, something at last happened to change the grim monotony of our days.

It was shortly after the lunch hour. Tom and I, who were now working too far apart to hear each other's halloo, had fired our revolvers once or twice to show that all was right with us. But, for no reason I can give, I suddenly got a feeling that all was not right with the old man, so I fired my revolver and gave him time for a reply. But there was no answer. Again I fired. Still no answer. I was on the point of firing again when I heard something coming through the brush behind me. It was Sailor racing toward me over the jagged rocks. Evidently there was something wrong.

"Something wrong with old Tom, Sailor?" I asked, as though he could answer me. And indeed he did answer me, plainly as dog could do, wagging his tail and whining and turning to go back with me in the direction whence he had come.

"Off we go, then, old chap," and as he ran ahead, I followed him as fast as I could.

It took me the best part of an hour to get to where Tom had been working. Sailor brushed his way ahead, pushing through the scrub with canine importance. Presently, at the top of a slight elevation, I came among the bushes to a softer spot where the soil had given way, and saw that it was the mouth of a shaft like a wide chimney flue, the earth of which had evidently fallen in. Here Sailor stopped and whined, pawing the earth, and at the same time I heard a moaning underneath.

"Is that you, Tom?" I called. Thank God, the old chap was not dead at all events.

"Thank the Lord, it's you, sar," he cried. "I'm all right, but I've had a bad fall—and I can't seem able to move."

"Hold on and keep up your heart—I'll be with you in a minute," I called down to him.

"Mind yourself, sar," he called cheerily, and indeed it was a problem to get down to him without precipitating the loose earth and rock that were ready to make a landslide down the hole, and perhaps bury him forever.

But, looking about, I found another natural tunnel in the side of the hill. Into this I was able to worm myself, and in the dim light found the old man and put my flask to his lips.

"Anything broken, do you think?" Tom didn't think so. He had evidently been stunned by his fall, and another pull at my flask set him on his feet. But as I helped him up, and, striking a light, we began to look around the hole he had tumbled into, he gave a piteous shriek and fell on his knees, jabbering with fear.

"The ghosts! the ghosts!" he screamed.

And the sight that met our eyes was certainly one to try the nerves. Two figures sat at a table—one with his hat tilted slightly and one leaning sideways in his chair in a careless sort of attitude. They seemed to be playing cards, and they were strangely white for they were skeletons.

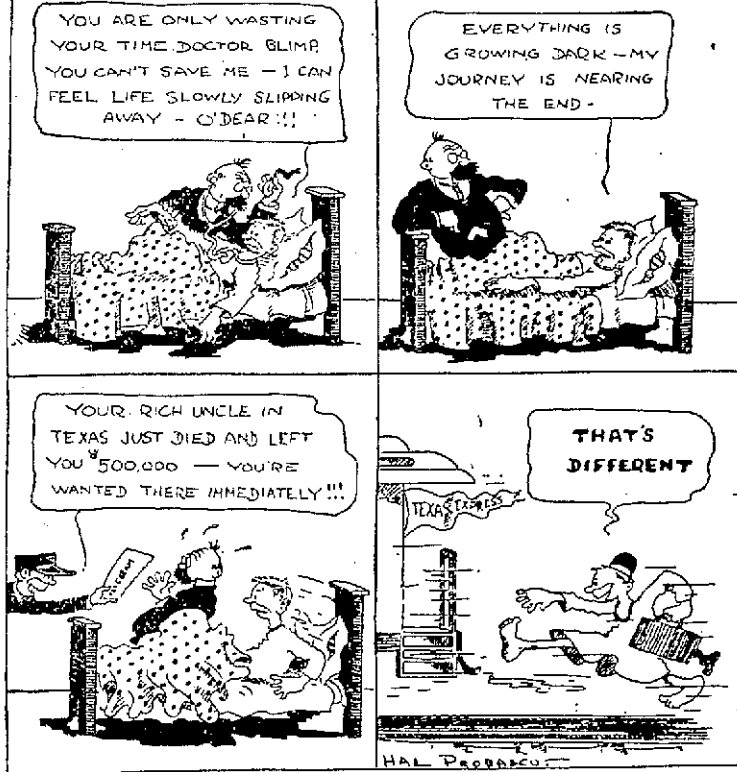

I stood bushes, while Tom's teeth rattled at my side. The fantastic awe of the thing was beyond telling. And then, not without a qualm or two, which I would be a liar to deny, I went and stood nearer to them. Nearly all their clothes had fallen away, hanging but in shreds here and there. That the hat had so jauntily kept its place was one of those grim touches Death, that terrible humorist, loves to add to his jests. The cards which had apparently just been dealt, had suffered scarcely from decay—only a little dirt had sifted down upon them, as it had into the rum glasses that stood, too, at each man's side. And as I looked at the skeleton jauntily facing me, I noticed that a bullet hole had been made as clean as if by a drill in his forehead of bone—white, turning to examine more closely his silent partner. I noticed a rusty sailor's knife hanging from the ribs where the lungs had been. Then I looked on the floor and found the key to the whole story. For there, within a few yards, stood a heavy sailor's chest, strongly bound around with iron. Its lid was thrown back and a few coins lay scattered on the bottom, while a few lay about on the floor. I picked them up.

They were pieces of eight!

Meanwhile Tom had stopped jabbering and had come nearer, looking on at averted side. I showed him the pieces of eight.

"I guess these are all we'll see of one John P. Tobias' treasure, Tom," I said. And it looks as if these poor fellows saw a little of it as ourselves. Can't you imagine them with it there at their feet—perhaps playing to divide it on a gamble, and meanwhile the other fellows stealing in through some of these rabbit runs—one with a knife, the other with a gun—and then off with the loot and up with the sails. Poor devils! It strikes me as a very pretty tragedy—doesn't it you?"

THAT'S DIFFERENT

Suddenly—perhaps with the vibration of our voices—the hat toppled off the head of the fellow facing us in the most weird and comical fashion—and that was too much for Tom, and he screamed and made for the exit hole.

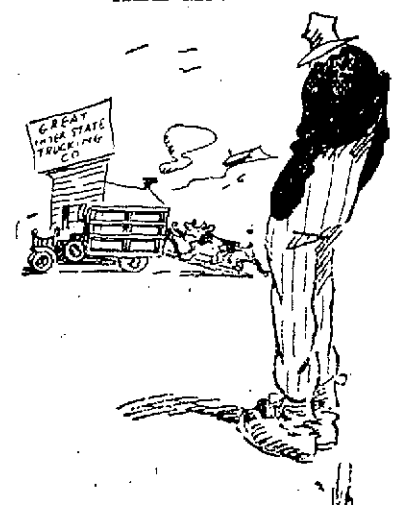

I Waited a Minute to Replace the Hat on the Rakish One's Head.

But I waited a minute to replace the hat on the rakish one's head. As I was likely often to think of him in the future I preferred to remember him at the moment of our first strange acquaintance.

PHYSICALLY FIT AT ANY AGE

It isn't age, it's careless living that puts men "down and out." Keep your internal organs in good condition and you will always be physically fit. The kidneys are the most over-worked organs in the human body. When they break down under the strain and the deadly uric acid accumulates and crystallizes look out! These sharp crystals tear and scratch the delicate urinary channels causing excruciating pain and set up irritations which may cause premature degeneration and often do turn into deadly Bright's Disease. One of the first warnings of sluggish kidney action is pain or stiffness in the small of the back, loss of appetite, indigestion or rheumatism. Do not wait until the danger is upon you. At the first indication of trouble go after the cause at once. Get a trial box of GOLD MEDAL Haaslem Oil Capsules, imported direct from the laboratories in Holland. They will give almost immediate relief. If for any cause they should not, your money will be refunded. But be sure to get GOLD MEDAL. None other is genuine. In sealed boxes, three sizes.

"Yassah."

"And do you not know that you can accomplish more with animals by speaking to them?"

"Yassah; but this critter am different. He am so deaf, he can't hear when Ah speaks to him in de usual way, so Ah has to communicate with him in de sign language."

The young cyclist was fighting hard against a strong head wind and wondering what unhappy thought prompted him to venture so far away from the school. It was getting darker every minute, and to crown his misery, rain began to fall.

Soon the rain came down in its best style, and the poor fellow got wet to the skin. Then a piece of glass laid his tire open. With a moan he flung himself from the saddle and commenced to repair the damage.

Presently there approached from the opposite direction a benevolent old gentleman. Gazing at the untired cyclist, the peripatetic youth and the repairing old man, he inquired:

"Had a puncture, my friend?"

The boy looked up and swallowed his feelings with a huge gulp.

"No, sir," he replied, with a magnificent effort at sarcasm. "I'm just changing the air in the tires. The other let's worn out, you know."

"A horse, a horse! My kingdom for a horse!" roared Richard III.

A wag in the gallery shouted.

"Wouldn't a donkey do you?"

"And the quick reply came back:

"Yes; come round to the stage door!"

All Stars Will Meet Old Foe at Koshkonong Next Sunday

By George McManus.

THINGS LOOK BRIGHT FOR ANOTHER WIN

By KID BIFF
Charley Bluff at Lake Koshkonong is going to be the scene of a regular baseball battle Sunday afternoon, when the Janesville All-Stars will meet the Milton Junction Trojans in the tenth season of the season. The All-Stars, still headed by Skinny Manogu, defeated the Trojans, 12 to 4, Sunday.

This makes the Stars more than over a century old, and it will mean practically a victory over the Trojans. Hager will have to use all the stuff he possesses, including his highly touted "tomb" ball, if he is going to tame these here guys from the Junction, who think all a bat is made for is to drive out doubles, triples and homers. Hager has been going good this season, having won three games and lost three. His side-kick, Bevo Bick, has not yet ridden into form, but hopes to get there soon. He has started in four games this season and has come through with two victories. The Stars have a record of seven victories and but two defeats. Here are the scores of the season's games:

All-Stars 5; Red Devils 7.
All-Stars 1; Fox Hall 1.
All-Stars 23; Edgerton Giants 5.
All-Stars 6; Edgerton Outlaws 2.
All-Stars 14; R. H. S. Informals 3.
Beloit Giants 8; All-Stars 2.
All-Stars 14; Edgerton Outlaws 3.
Beloit Giants 14; All-Stars 13.
All-Stars 5; D. H. S. Informals 1.
Infield going good.

The infield is working fast and is giving the pitchers good support all the time. Blonde Pullman is the best bet in the infield today. He has not yet hit his batting stride. Marko is covering first base like a star.

McGinley at short and Graesslin on third are playing only mediocre games and are not living up to past performances. With Babcock, Graf, and Zahn in the acres, the Stars claim the fastest amateur outfield in the state. Everyone of these is a hit.

The Stars defeated the Trojans two games out of three last year so the game Sunday should be a hot one.

Advance dope shows that the Stars are the favorites to win the game.

Every Star is ordered to report at the Rock Hill or Institute diamond to the 8:30 a. m. and also Thursday night. Manager Bick says: "No excuses will be accepted."

17 GOLFERS OFF ON SECOND TOURNEY LAP

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
St. Louis, June 17.—At Sunset Hill Country club, 71 golfers played 13 holes today in the second round of the western amateur golf championship. After lunch on the 32 best scores starting match play with an 18 hole round, reducing the survivors at nightfall to 15 men, who will contest at 35 holes tomorrow.

Clarence Wolff, a local player led the scoring in the first round with a course record of 73, one over par, while twenty others scored under 80, although the course was new to him, and nothing higher than 80 got into the second round, limited to 64 or less for last place.

Bidding in a blind pool last night made Warren K. Wood of Chicago, who scored 73 yesterday, and Nelson Whitney of New Orleans, trans-Mississippi champion, who scored 59, the favorites. They were equal favorites at $500, while Paul Hunter and Paul Gardner of Chicago followed at $225. Roger Lord of St. Louis brought $200; Dudley Mudge, St. Paul $180; Clarence Wolff, $180; R. E. Bockenkamp, St. Louis and Donald Edwards, Chicago $175; James D. Standish, Detroit $155; G. Waldo, Detroit $155, and Harry G. Legg, Minneapolis $150.

HAWKS' ERRORS GIVE MADISON 8-6 VICTORY

The Blackhawks blew up completely behind Dan Mullin's stellar performance on the slab and allowed the Madison Independents to run home with an 8 to 6 victory after nine innings of mediocre ball at the Edgerton grounds Sunday afternoon. The Milton boy pitched a great game, striking out 15 men, but was given poor support, both the infield and outfield figuring heavily in the error column.

The Hawks hit Culver, another round-house out pitcher like Olson of Edgerton, quite freely, but could not make enough counters to overcome their errors.

The Hawks' line-up: McCue, c; Mullin, p; Leo Fleming, ss; Doran, 1b; Butters, 3b; W. Fleming, 2b; J. Butters, lf; Brockwick, cf; McCathy, rf.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Washington, June 17.—The army air service announced today that four planes of the Curtiss J. N-4 type soon would start on a trans-continental flight from Hazelhurst field, Mineola, New York, to Seattle, Wash. The flight would be to map out a new route between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

The personnel of the squadron, which will be accompanied by a observation balloon and motor trucks, will consist of 16 officers and 35 enlisted men. Stops will be made at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Columbus, Indianapolis, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Fargo, Bismarck and several other cities.

Area of Greenland.
Corrections made recently in maps of Greenland have shown it to be about 150,000 square miles larger than formerly believed.

According to those who have seen her play, Miss Kate Bauman of Plainfield shows considerable promise as a golfer. Miss Bauman, who is just out of her teens, has only been playing recently, yet her short game is said to be worthy of a champion. She doesn't succeed in getting much distance from the tee, however, but since it is always easier to remedy that phase than to become proficient in putting, Miss Bauman, with some practice, ought to be heard from before long. She expects to take part in the national women's championship tournament at Shawnee in the fall.

HERE'S THE REAL DOPE ON WILLARD

By N. E. BROWN.

Toledo, O., June 16.—(Special)—Conflicting stories about Jess Willard, regarding his weight and general condition have set ring fans at sea regarding the heavyweight champion's true condition.

I have just seen Willard during his daily workout out, I chatted with him during his leisure moments during the day. Here is the real dope on him: He is not weighed down with superfluous, flabby fat.

He has no pronounced stomach. He looks today as though he will be able to get into the pink of condition to defend his title against Jack Dempsey at Bay View Park, July Fourth. Before he started for his camp for his workout the day I looked him over he weighed 258 1/2 pounds. This is less than he weighed when he met Frank Moran—a pound less, and the big day is less than three weeks away.

When he stepped into the ring for his exercise I was surprised at his condition. True his flesh is not hard yet. It will not be stretched tightly over his muscles when he faces the Giant Killer.

Willard is not the type that reaches the skin and bone condition. But there was no "paunch" to shake as he used the pulling machine. There was considerable soft flesh on the upper parts of his legs but his calves were trim and firm.

The muscles of his arms are visible—not hidden by fat.

The supple flesh around his face has practically disappeared—enough so that his face has resumed its old proportions.

Willard had done four miles on the road in the morning—logging, running and walking by turns. When he entered in the afternoon he worked rapidly at the elastic pulling machine until he started a thorough sweat. The noticeable feature of this work was the fact that he stepped around resolutely lightly on his toes and not flat-footedly.

Then, without a breathing spell he took on Jack Hemple for three rounds. They were full three-minute rounds. Here they threw everything he had in Willard's direction and tried repeatedly to double him with punches in the stomach and rock him by reaching his head, without success. With only a between-rounds rest Willard then took on Walter Monahan, his best sparring mate. The big boy tore loose on Monahan and at the end of the three rounds was not winded. He was taking full breaths from his exertion but they weren't the gasping breaths of a corpulent, decrepit gentleman. Soldier Stanton, brought on from New York was the third victim. Willard roughed him. Then after a minute rest, he took on Hemple for a few minutes in a wrestling match. Willard pushed, bunted and swung Hemple around the ring.

When Jess stepped out of the arena to hit the shower he was perspiring profusely, but I noted two things. He had not soaked his wadded trunks and shirt as would a soft, flabby person after the same exertion and he did not look exhausted.

The day was hot—Fourth of July weather, Toledoans remarked. The breeze from over the Maumee Bay wasn't brisk enough to cool things off. Willard began his workout at 2:30 p. m. The sun was coming down fairly straight. We around the ring perspired though we sat still in our shirt sleeves.

It was an ideal day for Willard to test his endurance.

don't want to leave the impression that Willard is ready to step into the ring, but I do want to drive this truth home: Willard is near enough to the shape he hopes to be in July fourth that he isn't worrying and has no cause to fear that he cannot round into perfect form for the melee.

Jess' chances with Jack don't form a part of this essay. But Willard need not worry about losing because of poor condition.

SPORT SNAP-SHOTS

BY JACK KEENE.

They called it the "shine" ball for a time, and later it was called the "paraffine" ball. It appears now that the ball which Eddie Cicotte has so completely mastered should be known as the "mystery" ball. Cicotte or some other member of his team is so skilful in his massage work on the pellet that even the umpires are in a haze about it. Once in a great while a ball is thrown out, but most of them stay in the game, despite the numerous protests of opposing players.

There is no denying the fact that Cicotte is as smart as any other pitcher in the game, smarter than most of them; also that he has plenty of natural ability and probably would be a consistent winner without the freak delivery which he alone seems to have mastered. But it is likewise true that when he is pitching the ball takes on an uneven discoloration that can be noticed in the grandstand. Umpires examine it, realize that it is discolored, but regard it as with the baseball law. Last summer Joe Finerman of the Yankees used the delivery with some success but, nothing like that of Cicotte. At Comiskey park the Chicago players put up protests against Finerman, but Billy Evans ans, who was umpiring the series, declined to throw out the ball when Finerman was pitching, since he figured it was no different than when Cicotte was working.

Finerman's mode of doctoring the ball consisted in rubbing paraffine into the seams on one side of the ball. By pressing his glove into the dirt and rubbing the ball into the palm of the glove the dirt entered the seams and stuck there, thus making the side of the ball containing the paraffine and dirt heavier than the other. Without the paraffine the dirt would not hold but the wax substance kept it in. Finerman could make the ball take peculiar gyrations in practice, but he could not properly control it in a game.

Jim Shaw of the Washington club has done considerable experimenting with the same ball. Shaw's uniform has a dark spot near the right hip on which he rubs the ball continually while pitching.

When the Yankees were at Comiskey park recently they did some doctoring of their own to offset the effects of the treatment which they contend Cicotte gives to a ball. Eddie beat them that day, but he did not weave and such spell over them as on days when he had the delivery working properly. The box score showed nine hits and some, more were cut off by the great fielding of Collins and Rixberg. Shawkey pitched for the Yankees and he found it difficult to control the ball that had been so much doctoring. In the late innings the Yankees decided that they were handicapped. Shawkey and let the ball caping. Shawkey's delivery in the late innings than in the early frames, and is only strike outs of the game, three in number, came in the last three innings.

New York players contend that Cicotte uses the paraffine and dirt system to get the peculiar twists on the ball. Perhaps that is the true story, perhaps not. At any rate Cicotte has something that no other pitcher has.

Two years ago it was argued that one side of the ball was roughened and the other shined up to get the peculiar break. Later came the pucked seam theory. The only evidence from the stand consists in the rapid discoloration with no apparent reason, and the eagerness not to let certain balls get out of the play.

Then again it must not be forgotten that the ball, after getting the necessary massage, must be thrown a certain way, and that adds to the mystery of it. Cicotte seems to be the only one that knows all about that, or it least is the only one to pitch it with success.

One of the first seven home runs made by the Yankees only one was made at the Polo grounds. Vick got that one, a smash into the left field bleachers. Shibe park has been the favorite spot for the Yanks in hitting for the circuit. During their first visit to Philadelphia Duffy Lewis hit into the left field seats, and in the series which ended recently Bodie and Peck drove the ball into the bleachers at Mack's park. Bodie also got a home run on this field when he hit to center and the ball rolled behind the center. Walter Pipp got a home run recently while the Yankees were playing at Detroit, and Frank Baker got his first circuit clout of the year while the Yankees were in St. Louis.

Prisoner of Reds to Wed

New York, June 17.—New York, Washington and Philadelphia society has received invitations to the wedding of Col. Andrew Kalpaschnikoff and Miss Celia Higgins of New York city, daughter of Campbell Higgins.

Colonel Kalpaschnikoff arrived in New York a few weeks ago. For five months and 17 days he was a prisoner in the fortress of Peter and Paul in Petrograd, but, like Miss Higgins, to whom he became engaged in 1917, just before the downfall of the czar, he never gave up hope. From 1911 to 1918, Colonel Kalpaschnikoff, who speaks English like a native, was secretary to the Russian embassy in Washington, and he was popular in the smart social circles of Washington and New York society. It was during his stay in Washington that he met Miss Higgins, but it was not until his return here in 1917 for a short lecture tour that he met her again, and their engagement followed. A few weeks later came the announcement of the Russian revolution. He left for Russia, telling his fiancée he would be back in a few months.

strung along the vast battlefields of Europe.

In December of 1917 he was arrested in Petrograd by the bolsheviks on various charges, one of which was that he was on friendly terms with the capitalist class of the allied countries. He lay for nearly six months in the fortress in solitary confinement.

"Finally," he said, "for some unknown reason, they decided to release me, in spite of the fact that once the death sentence was pronounced on me. But I knew that every move I made in Petrograd would be watched and I lost myself to the bolsheviks by stealing from place to place, sleeping at a different place every night and disguising myself as a mechanic."

"With forged bolshevik passports, I was to obtain food for the bolshevik army. I made my way south, walking or riding on train whenever I could, and there was no use to try the northern route of escape."

Took Chance of Escape.

"I chose between certain death if I stayed in Petrograd and the possible chance of escape through the German

Negro and White Woman Are Refused License

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]

Bloomington, Pa., June 17.—Comly Young, a negro of Columbia county, and Mazie Shutt, a white woman of the same town, spent two hours here trying to obtain a license to wed without securing the desired document. The pair entered the office of Clerk of Court John Watson to obtain the license, but Watson was out, and his deputy, Shuman, refused to take the responsibility for such a license and return. Tiring of waiting they visited the office of Justice of the Peace J. C. Utter, Jr., to enlist his aid. Utter balked at the proposition. Judge John C. Harman was then interviewed in his chambers with no better success. After making all the rounds the pair returned to Clerk Watson's office, who knew of no law in Pennsylvania which would permit the license. The couple then left, declaring they would obtain the license in spite of law and convention.

Chicken Went to Movie, Talked Too Much

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]

Atlanta, Ga., June 16.—"Klunk, klunk, urk, urk, urk, urk." It sounded like a chicken in the Forsythe theater on a recent Saturday afternoon. The spectators thought it was a part of the picture. But the noise continued. When the "poor working girl," harassed by the villain, was about to seek refuge in the murky waters of the river the chicken "urked" and remarked "kandarket." An elderly woman got up, looked flustered, looked flustered, carrying a hen in a paper sack, hastily left. And the managerman expect to add "No babies in arms, or chickens, admitted."
